Gentlemen:

As an entrepreneur I believe in the freedom to conduct business in a manner consistent with civilized practice and the laws of the State and Country.

I consider that Microsoft has done this, yes there may be some sour grapes from others not so smart or not so fast, their loss will encourage them to try harder and move faster in future that's free enterprise. Its very easy to get overly combative in the heat of battle maybe Microsoft is guilty of that but no more. Thanks to Microsoft products my business runs much more efficiently today than 10 years ago. I suggest that the Government busy themselves with criminals , tax evaders,terrorists and suchlike and leave entrepreneurs and business men to do what they are best at even if its highly competitive.

Sincerely

Gordon B. Knight
